House calls aren't just for doctors. Three lawyers at Rutman and Rutman work with clients in their homes.

Gary D. Indech, the lawyer who developed the mobile service, makes house calls to provide advice and have people sign documents in refinancing of their properties, purchases and sales. He also meets with people to review and sign wills, powers of attorney and living wills at their home, in hospitals, nursing homes, and elsewhere. This is the Rutman and Rutman Primary Mobile Service.

"It is a service that we provide to our clients so that if they have difficulty coming to our office during office hours they can still have access to our services. Most mobile service calls are done in the evening but on occasion, we will meet with clients in the morning or during the day," said Indech.

Indech said most lawyers do not visit their clients' homes at their home as a regular part of their practice. Because of this service, Rutman and Rutman's client base has expanded well outside of the Brampton and Mississauga area: they now have clients in Hamilton, Burlington, to Oshawa, Barrie, Newmarket, and throughout the GTA. People seem to really appreciate this service.

"The mobile service has received a very positive reception from those who have benefited from it. Also there is no added fee for using the service. Finally, the mobile service is one of the services that distinguishes Rutman and Rutman as a competitive and entrepreneurial firm in the Brampton area," Indech said.

Even though there are many will kits on the market, Indech said it is still important for people to consult a professional. "Will kits, in my opinion, are too simple to cover the complexities of what people require for proper estate planning. Also there are special clauses that go into wills that may be overlooked by will kits and people may require special advice as to their situation," Indech said.

People also should consult lawyers for other family law issues an often neglected area.

"When people separate or are seeking a divorce they may require independent legal advise as to their rights arising from the family law matter. Family law is becoming an ever-increasing complex field of law and requires the expertise of lawyers to sort out complex issues," Indech said.

Rutman and Rutman can help you with estate planning, family law and other matters. Its six lawyers are well versed in various areas: residential and commercial real estate, refinancing and debt consolidation, wills and estate planning, corporate and business law, criminal and civil litigation, employment law, and family law. This firm also has in-house counsel who assists it with personal injury litigation.

Daniel and Tamara Rutman married in 1996 and soon after realized their ultimate dream - to start their own practice while having a family.

They strive for that old-fashioned approach from their downtown Brampton office. Clients are on a first name basis with Daniel and Tamara who enjoy dealing with smaller businesses.

Rutman and Rutman is a full service firm with six lawyers. Gary Indech, Wesley Jackson, and Dan Rutman participate in the mobile service. To see why people from across the GTA are calling Rutman and Rutman, phone 905-456-9969.
